Flappy Bird History

Flappy Bird is a 2013 mobile game where the player controls a bird that flies between green pipes. The game's gameplay is inspired by the challenge of bouncing a ping pong ball on a paddle. The game's popularity exploded after a shoutout from Swedish YouTuber Pewdiepie. The game's popularity led to scrutiny for the game's developer, Dong Nguyen, including death threats from players who couldn't beat the game. Flappy Bird app was rejected by app stores. The community decided to come together and develop a flappy bird app that can't be taken away from the people. It is up to us as a community to foster what we want not up to corporations!
